Growing Instructions:

Sow indoors January to April.

Sow the seeds thinly into pots and cover with a fine layer of compost.

When they are large enough to handle, transplant into 3" pots and grow on in cooler conditions. When the risk of frost has passed they can be gradually acclimatised for planting outdoors in full sun or alternatively in a greenhouse or indoors in a sunny position.

Harvest as required.

A tapered, Italian heirloom sweet pepper known for its exceptional sweetness and crunchy texture. Reaching 6 to 8 inches in length, they start green and mature to a vibrant red or yellow. Perfect for roasting, stuffing, or eating fresh in salads.
